Comprehensive service for specifiers: profine Kompetenzcenter presented itself at the BAU 2011 trade fair

Munich – With the slogan "professional knowledge around the window" the profine Kompetenzcenter presented its comprehensive range of services for architects, housing companies and public contracting entities at the BAU 2011 trade fair.

"With each building project, new requirements are made, new questions arise with regard to thermal insulation, acoustic insulation or calculation of ventilation requirements. It is our task to give well-founded answers to all these questions", states Peter Jansig, head of the profine project management.

Under these circumstances, the project management provides advice to specifiers and the manufacturers of KBE, Kömmerling and Trocal brand windows, starting at the planning stage, during tendering, up to installation, final inspection and acceptance on site.

Peter Jansig refers to numerous reference objects of the profine project management and emphasizes: "Whether the subject is monument protection, public development schemes, isothermal process calculation or planning of regulated room ventilation: We are the contact for our customers for complete support in handling and market preparation."

An extensive range of training courses for all these subjects is offered by the profine Kompetenzcenter in the framework of its Partnerakademie for the different target groups in the industry. In addition, the consulting branch of the department provides advice to profine customers by individual business management consultation.

As a reflexion of the key requirements in the contract business, the trade fair presentation of the market leader was classified into the focal points thermal insulation, ventilation and colours. In this context, the energy efficient 88 mm window systems of KBE, Kömmerling and Trocal, their AluFusion composite solutions as well as the innovative window ventilation systems AirTronic and PremiVent were in the centre of attention.
