

New metallic laminates – profine expanding its colour programme

With four laminates sporting a brushed metal look, profine Group is currently expanding its colour laminate programme for the 88 mm systems of the KBE, Kömmerling, and Trocal brands. Under the designation Metbrush the profiles of these systems have been available since March in the colours Silver, Platinum, Quartz grey, and Anthracite grey.

The particularly high quality appeal of the colours is made possible by the latest laminate technology involving the application of metallic pigments in a multistage process. Moreover, the new Metbrush laminates are produced in the high tech "cool colors". This innovative technology reduces the heat absorbed by laminated profiles, enhancing their dimensional stability and weather resistance.

"With these metallic laminates we are continuing a trend that is now being felt particularly by developers of high quality living accommodation. Together with the matching materials and colours in the window's environment their particular visual appeal can serve to underline the high quality of a building – with all of the classical advantages of PVC-U windows to boot," explained Yvonne Di Loreto, Project Manager at profine.

The Metbrush programme contains profiles refined on one and both sides. The customer can choose between metallic colours on the outside and neutral white on the inside or metallic colours on both the inside and outside.

The new Metbrush laminates are available without additional charge for the 88 mm systems with a delivery time of fifteen working days following receipt of the order. For all other systems, the Metbrush laminates are subject to conditions and delivery times available on request.
